

Further consolidation of media ownership represents a serious threat to freedom of the press and freedom of speech. One of this nation's most precious cornerstones has been the free exchange of ideas and viewpoints that its exceptionally diverse print and electronic media has fostered. We must not further jeopardize that diversity.